

Amir Livne

Senior Vice President for Strategy, Innovation and Restructure Process; Israel Electric Corporation (IEC)

Amir Livne is the Vice President of Strategy, Innovation, and Structural Change at the Israel Electric Corporation.

He is responsible for shaping the company's strategy and overseeing the historic reform and structural change within the company and the electricity market. Additionally, Amir is in charge of the company's innovation process and business development.

Since 2003, Amir has held various management positions at the Israel Electric Corporation and has been involved in all major processes in the electricity sector over the past two decades.

Amir holds an L.L.B (Bachelor's degree) in Law from the University of Haifa and an L.L.M (Master's degree) in Law from the University of Haifa.