

William Weisinger

William is the Manager of Renewable Energy and Innovation Projects at Eilat-Eilat Renewable Energy, leading technical and business development activities on projects that have potential to enhance energy security and to drive social and economic development. In his role William works closely with diverse teams and organizations including academia, industry, government, local communities, entrepreneurs, and experts. Prior to joining Eilat-Eilat Renewable Energy, William gained experience working with several commercial companies and applied research and development institutes. William holds a BSc. from Stellenbosch University and MBA from Ben Gurion University.